In the light of the update to the AMF's doctrine on liquidity management tools pursuant to AIFMD II, the documentation has been reworded to more clearly identify the two liquidity tools (swing pricing and gates) that existed already.

The description of the financial instruments used has been amended to clarify the way in which ratings are used. In accordance with the regulations, investment in non-governmental bonds is subject to constraints based on the internal ratings of issues or issuers that are assigned by the management company following its credit analysis and that do not rely exclusively or automatically on the ratings awarded by credit rating agencies. The existing exposure limits will be kept as they are.

It is specified that ETFs (Exchange-Traded Funds) may be held in their capacity as UCITS, AIFs or investment funds.

In addition, it is specified that the H2O EuroSovereign and H2O EuroSovereign 3-5 years sub-funds may trade on the primary market (via auctions or syndications) or on the secondary market.

The sub-fund is not registered in Singapore.

The potential use of artificial intelligence has been taken into account with an addition to the investment strategy section and the addition of a new risk. However, it should be noted that the inclusion of generative AI tools in the investment research process does not constitute a significant change to the discretionary macroeconomic framework established by the management company. Rather, it reflects the natural evolution of its investment process thanks to new technologies.

Finally, with the exception of the H2O EuroSovereign and H2O EuroSovereign 3-5 years sub-funds, which are not subject to performance fees, the paragraph on said fees has been reworded, in particular to clarify the concept of “high-water mark” in the context of determining the benchmark asset and to revise the scenario simulations by incorporating an additional year. This new wording does not change the methodology for calculating performance fees.

The minimum initial subscription for the EUR-N and HUSD-N units of H2O ALLEGRO FCP* and the EUR-N units of H2O VIVACE FCP* has been reduced to one ten-thousandth of a unit.

The fund is registered as Restricted Foreign Scheme in Singapore and reserved for qualified investors only.*
